

The smiling duckie is Mack, and he will be your guide through the Duckietown experience.

Getting Started with Duckietown

Some of the staff and students for the first edition of the Duckietown class at MIT.
Please see <http://duckietown.mit.edu/staff.html> for the complete list of staff.

Introduction

What is Duckietown?

(To write)

Is Duckietown free to use?

Yes. All materials are released according to an open source license.

Is everything ready?

Not quite! Please sign up to our mailing list¹ to get notified when things are a bit more ready.

How can I start?

See the next section, Getting started.

How can I help?

(To write)

What is the Duckiebot?

(To write)

¹ <http://goo.gl/forms/OxZu85WGi7>

Getting Started

Getting started for self-guided learners

(To write)

Getting started for educators

(To write)

Getting started for researchers

(To write)

FAQ

FAQ by students / independent learners

I want to build my own Duckiebot. How do I get started?

(To write)

FAQ by instructors

How large a class can it be? I teach large classes.

(To write)

What is the budget for the robot?

(To write)

I want to teach a Duckietown class. How do I get started?

(To write)

FAQ by researchers